International Trade Group

About the Lex Mundi International Trade Group

Lex Mundi's International Trade Group provides cross-border advice to a broad range of clients including global importers and exporters, industry groups and foreign governments. This group is comprised of more than 195 lawyers from around the world.

Areas of the group's on-the-ground expertise include:

- Compliance programs
- Customs and import regulations/issues
- Export controls
- Economic sanctions
- Regulation/approval of foreign investments
- Trade remedy (antidumping, countervailing duty, etc.)
- Trade policy, including WTO and Free Trade Agreements

Through the Lex Mundi network of more than 150 leading law firms in more than 125+ countries, our global team of lawyers offers you the in-depth knowledge and indigenous insight of full-service independent firms, as well as the seamless cross-border service of the international business firm: the best of both worlds.

Know-How and Market Trends

Members of the International Trade Group maintain an on-going watchful brief on global trends and developments and provide regular updates to colleagues across the network and to their clients. Through knowledge-sharing on trending issues, including on notable new legislation, petitions and recent case law, Lex Mundi firms help clients anticipate and proactively respond to complex regulatory challenges and key developments on the horizon in jurisdictions where they operate.

Equisphere - A Unique Service Model

Through Equisphere, Lex Mundi's innovative service model, the International Trade group members seamlessly handle their clients' most challenging cross-border transactions and disputes. In addition to having common protocols for communication, timelines, deliverables and budgets, members of the Group can work to uniform engagement terms. Joint fee quotes and coordinated billing are available on request. In addition, clients have access to Lex Mundi's secure and user-friendly digital platform which can be used to build data rooms, draft documents, manage workstreams, and monitor fees, deadlines and deliverables. In addition to providing complimentary project management and tech support, Lex Mundi and its member firms invest substantial time off the clock to understand their clients' particular needs and commercial drivers.

Lex Mundi Digital TeamSpace

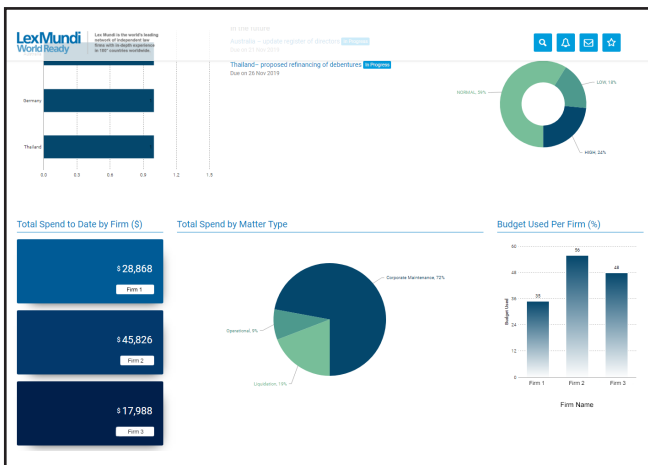

Secure Client Dashboards for Multijurisdictional Matters

Lex Mundi was the first global legal network to form a strategic partnership with the leading technology collaboration platform HighQ.

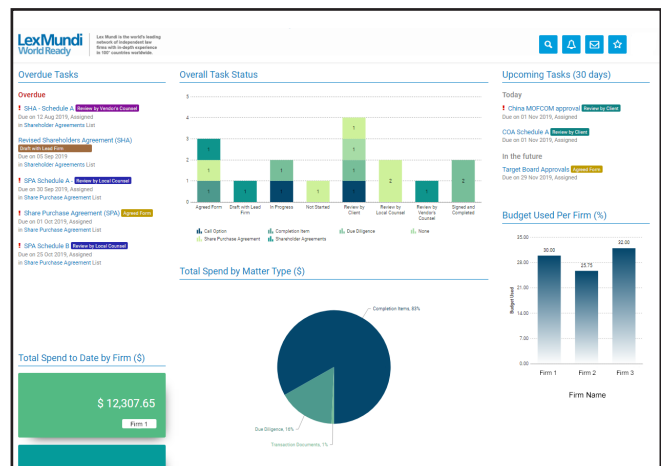

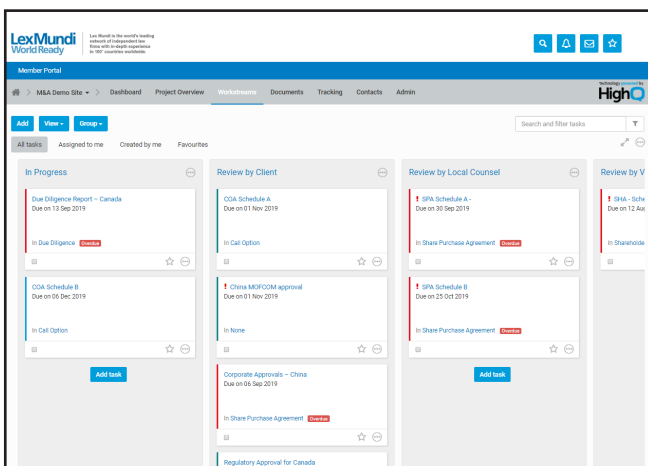

Lex Mundi DigitalTeamSpaces provide a dedicated, secure shared workspace for data rooms and document management, and facilitated project management through matter tracking, budget tracking, coordinated invoicing and housing of engagement terms.

Lex Mundi Digital TeamSpaces have been used by member firms for live drafting sessions involving attorneys around the world as well as for the management of very large multijurisdictional matters including M&A and compliance.

The Lex Mundi Global Markets team provides administrative support to set up and provide specific access to authorized team members, as well as project management.
